Esopus Districts Plan Events for Big Convention

Five Districts Working to Make Firemen's Convention in July Huge Success

The Town of Esopus Fire Districts, comprising the fire districts of Connelly, Port Ewen, Esopus, Rifton and St. Remy, are acting as hosts to the Veteran-Volunteer Firemen's Association at the twelfth annual convention, which will be held on July 24, 25, 26 in the Town of Esopus at Port Ewen.

At a meeting held Thursday night in the Port Ewen Fire Department, Wilson LeFever, chairman of the convention committee, asked that each fire district urge upon all its members and its local people to take an active part in making this convention a huge success.

It was decided that the next meeting be held on May 22 at 8 p. m. at the Connelly Fire Department, and that future meetings will be rotated to each fire district. The committee feels that by so doing it will create more of a local interest from each separate fire district.

Asks Cooperation

Edward Mainer, president of the Ulster County organization asked everyone to do his part to contact the advertisers for the program journal and secure their 1947 listing before the next meeting, and make a report to Harry Van Ormer, chairman of the Program Committee.

Edgar Mauer and Harry Secor reported that they expect to complete arrangements for the decorations before the next meeting. Charles Elmendorf, chairman of entertainment, reported that he is contacting some very well known entertainers, and he feels sure that the Association and their friends will be pleased with his choice.

Socials for Funds

It was also reported that card parties and other affairs are being planned in each fire district in conjunction with the Auxiliaries to help raise the necessary funds to make this Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Convention the most outstanding in its history.

Miss Helen Schryver spoke upon the card party being held May 16 at the Town Hall at Port Ewen by the Auxiliary in conjunction with the firemen, and urged that everybody help and to be sure to attend this function and bring their friends. The proceeds will go to help to raise money for the convention.

Inmates in One Block Quit When Gas Is Threatened; Termed a Race Riot

By AL DOPKING

Fort Leavenworth, Kas., May 3 (AP)—Army authorities reported today they had subdued 250 of 800 prisoners who engaged in a night-long riot at the Fort Leavenworth disciplinary barracks after one prisoner was killed and seven others were injured.

The 250 inmates of one of two cell blocks involved, surrendered after Col. Graeme Parks, disciplinary barracks commandant issued an ultimatum over the loud speaker system telling the men that the army was in full control, and unless they gave up all air would be shut off and the cell blocks would be flooded with tear gas. No word had been received from prisoners in cell block 7, the other affected.

The riot was reported to have been the outgrowth of a recent order that white and Negro prisoners should eat together in the same mess, and was described as a race riot within the prison.

The commanding officer told the men over the address system that white and Negro inmates had been segregated at breakfast this morning and that this practice would be continued.

More than 200 tear gas shells and grenades had been lobbed into the cell blocks before Parks issued the ultimatum.

After Parks' broadcast on the speaker system, the men in cell block 6 sent a spokesman to tell a guard at the doorway that they were ready to surrender.

The men were ordered to come out in groups of five. They were brought into the rotunda, stripped and searched. They then were herded into another cell block which had been emptied and prepared for isolation of the rioting prisoners.

The rotunda was guarded by 100 troops armed with "billy clubs" and tear gas. The rioting had two firehoses set up ready to turn high pressure streams on the men if they showed signs of giving further trouble.

There was no information on whether there may have been more than the reported casualties originally reported.

Col. Parks identified the dead inmate as Dewey Osborne, a white man, 30, Mountain City, Tenn., and said he had been stomped to death.

Injured were a prisoner named Woodberry, stabbed in the lung with an ice-pick (first name and hometown unavailable); Robert Lee Freeman, 31, Chattanooga, Tenn., head injury and bruises; E. C. Smith, 37, Baltimore, Md., Continued on Page Five

More Than Half Of Y.M.C.A. Fund Is Reported Reached

Last Night's Meeting Has $11,479.81 Listed as Collected in Drive for $20,000

A total of $11,479.81 has been contributed to date in the local Y.M.C.A. financial drive, it was announced last night at the second report meeting.

Attorney Lloyd LeFever, initial gift chairman, reported to Dwight McEntee, general chairman that another $5,000 had been added to the fund from the initial gift group.

The second report total represented an additional $675.33 in the fund, and Chairman McEntee emphasized the point that the weekend represented special opportunity for the workers to boost the fund. He stressed the need for extra effort if it is to close May 6, with the goal of $20,000 reached.

Burt Tandy reminded the workers that the reason behind present lack of impressive donations, was inadequate coverage due to shortage of workers rather than a lack of interest among Kingstonians.

The total for the initial gift committee was reported at $10,000.

The three wards with highest donations for this Report Night session were the 12th, with $132.75; the 7th, with $107.50 and the 1st, with $92.50. Team captains were awarded prizes of a bag of Florida oranges, a Fuller shirt and a suit of pajamas.

The campaign is to close Tuesday night with a dinner, final reports, speeches and prize awards.

Bread Rationing May End

Dundee, Scotland, May 3 (AP)—Food Minister John Strachey said today there was "real hope" of ending bread rationing in Britain if this year's wheat harvests are good. Townsend Death Was Accidental

Connecticut State Cop Tells Coroner Gun Went Off in Scuffle With Local Boxer

Companion Held Nelson's Story Reveals He and Townsend Had Been Drinking

State Policeman Thomas Nichols told Coroner Theodore E. Steiber at Bridgeport, Conn., that he had "absolutely no intention of shooting Walter J. 'Tiny' Townsend, 24, light-heavyweight boxer of this city who was killed at Trumbull, Conn., Thursday, the Associated Press reported today.

The officer was completely cleared following an investigation Friday by the coroner, who, in a report issued immediately after the inquest, gave Nichols "full exonerations" and declared that Townsend's conduct "could very well have produced the accidental shooting that occurred."

Resented Handcuffs

Testimony revealed that after Nichols and Policeman Warren French had stopped an allegedly stolen automobile on the Merritt Parkway in Trumbull, Nichols tried to handcuff Townsend while covering him with a pistol.

Townsend, according to Nichols, grabbed the wrist of his gun hand and the weapon was discharged during a struggle.

Had Been Drinking

William B. Nelson, 28, of New Haven, named by police as driver of the car, has been booked on charges of theft of a motor vehicle of the Second Company of the Governor's Foot Guard. Nelson, chauffeur for Colonel Weibel, said both he and Townsend had been drinking.

Townsend fought in the ring as "Tiny" Townsend. Police said he was known in New Haven as Enrico and Tony Rodriguez.

Irwin Friedman, counsel for Townsend's estate and for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, asserted after the inquest, which he attended, that the association would conduct its own investigation of the shooting.

It was reported today that Townsend's address is 55 and not 63 Hasbrouck avenue as was originally given.

Job for Unions

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Senator Ball (R-Minn.) today expressed "serious doubts" that Communists can be kept out of union leadership by passing a law. The Minnesota lawmaker told a reporter that while he wants Communists routed from labor organizations, "that's a job of housecleaning; unions can do best themselves."

The Hartley Labor Bill already passed by the House contains a provision denying collective bargaining rights to a union if any of its officers could "reasonably be regarded" as a Communist or a Communist sympathizer.

Both parties declined to say what business will be in the building in the future.

Driver of Stalled Car Arrested After Crash

Clifford Parslow, 26, of Lomontville reported to the sheriff's office shortly before midnight that a Willys car which he was operating, owned by Walter F. Barnes of Route 3, Kingston, had struck an electric light pole as he attempted to avoid a car which was parked on the highway at Saxville, town of Marlborough. The car was considerably damaged and the pole broken.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Winne and Joseph Haver made an investigation and found a car license in the name of Anna M. Schmidt, Krumville, and operated by Leo Smith, had run out of gas and the operator left it on the roadway without lights while William Ward of Krumville went for gas.

When the officers arrived they claim Smith refused to show his license and became "abusive." He was placed under arrest on a disorderly conduct charge and taken before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the town of Ulster who held Smith in $25 bail for a hearing later before Justice of the Peace Roger H. Loughran of the town of Hurley. Smith was remanded to jail.

As official representative of the V.A., Mr. Sheehan will be able to deal directly with the Albany regional office, which is responsible for processing and awarding claims and benefits for veterans living in the Kingston area.

Veterans who plan to use terminal leave bonds for the payment of premiums on G.I. insurance can process the necessary papers in the Kingston office, Mr. Sheehan said.

Appointment Announced at Friday Meeting; Has Extensive County Plans

At a meeting of the County of Ulster Department of Health held Friday evening, Dr. George W. Weber, who had been certified number one on the eligible list by the County Civil Service Commission, was appointed to the permanent position of Sanatorium Director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

Dr. Weber has been serving under provisional appointment since February 15 when he took over the duties, acting as director pending the civil service examination and the supplying of an eligible list to the Board of Health.

Has Extensive Program

Since Dr. Weber has taken over the work at the hospital two and a half months ago he has increased the census at the hospital about 40 per cent and the hospital is now operating at full capacity.

Clinics have been held in various parts of the county including Ellenville, Saugerties and Woodstock and an extensive program of tuberculosis work has been outlined. A night clinic has been established at the Kingston Health Center on East O'Reilly street and the program throughout the county will be expanded.

Dr. George W. Weber, M. D., was appointed to the position of director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital by the Ulster County Board of Health in January and assumed his duties on February 15. That appointment was temporary pending the holding of civil service examination to establish an eligible list. Dr. Weber succeeded Dr. Frederick W. Holcomb who had served as director on a part time basis for many years. Dr. Holcomb, who had given very generously of his time and ability to the work, was unable to accept a full time position but has been assisting in the work at the hospital.

Authority on Treatment

Considered one of the outstanding authorities on tuberculosis work, Dr. Weber had been serving as principal physician with the New York State Health Department's Division of Tuberculosis for 10 years in charge of tuberculosis control in all state custodial institutions. During the time he was with the State Department of Health he served two years as a major in the United States Public Health Service in the Middle East and in Italy.

Prior to entering state service he had been resident physician at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital from 1933 to 1936. He is a member of the National Tuberculosis Association and had done considerable research in tuberculosis work. He has completed a two year post-graduate course and did work at Sea View Tuberculosis Hospital, Staten Island, where for a year and a half he was resident in charge of thoracic surgery.

Under Dr. Weber it is planned to expand the tuberculosis control work in the county.

Mexico Welcomes American Capital Aleman Asserts

Businessmen Operating Without Greed Are Invited to Deal in Country

New York, May 3 (AP)—Mexico welcomes American capital "willing to observe its laws and be satisfied with a fair profit," says President Miguel Aleman.

Aleman, the first Mexican president to visit New York, told a dinner at the Pan American Society last night.

"American capital that really means to share in the life of Mexico; that is willing to observe its laws and be satisfied with a fair profit, without selfish greed or the illusion of becoming a law unto itself, shall be welcome to Mexico and will derive all the advantages that American citizens who are cooperating with us in the economic development of my country are actually enjoying."

Quotes Roosevelt

The Mexican president, who spoke in Spanish, recalled with approval these words of the late President Roosevelt at Monterrey, Mexico, in 1933: "We know that the days of the exploitation of the resources and the people of one country for the benefit of any group in another country are definitely over."

The special Palestine assembly of the United Nations scheduled an extraordinary meeting today to honor Aleman.

The session will be confined to ceremonies and brief addresses by Aleman and U. N. officials, Andrew A. Cordier, executive assistant to Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, said.

Receives Degree

Before the dinner honoring him, the Mexican president had a crowded day, including a traditional New York welcome with a Broadway automobile parade, award of honorary citizenship in New York and an honorary degree from Columbia University. Police estimated that despite the dull, rainy weather, 1,500,000 persons lined the flag-draped streets of the financial district and that another 1,000,000 watched the parade in other parts of the city.

Son Is Missing

Miguel Aleman, Jr., 14-year-old son of the visiting President of Mexico, was "missing" for 20 minutes yesterday, and U. S. and Mexican agents assigned to guard him had a nervous time.

The wiry, freckle-faced, hazel-eyed boy was riding in the rear of a motorcade enroute to a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore. When the procession reached the hotel, several cars, including the boy's, were missing.

It developed that some of the cars had been shunted to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel by mistake.

Located there, the boy was whisked to the Commodore, arriving in time for luncheon.

Bell Company's Offer of $4 Is Accepted by Three Unions; 16,000 Must Ratify Deal

First Deviation Washington Proposal Is $2, $3, $4 Based on Locality

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The first tentative wage settlement between a Bell System company and an affiliate of the National Federation of Telephone Workers hinted at a break today in the nationwide telephone strike.

Four sets of negotiations in the capital were still deadlocked, but there were these two big developments:

1. In Chicago leaders of three N.F.T.W.-affiliated unions accepted $4 for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., subject to ratification by 16,000 members. It was the first deviation in the N.F.T.W. from its demand for a nationwide boost of $6 a week.

2. In Washington, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company made its first money offer to its 20,000 long-distance employees.

Though rejected by the American Union of Telephone Workers, this offer was a departure from the previous A. T. & T. position of offering to settle by arbitration making no money proposals.

The offer was $2, $3, or $4, depending partly on the geographical locality. Thus it was not an across-the-board arrangement.

Both Sides Hold Firm

After the rejection, government conciliators Peter J. Manno and William N. Margolis kept the parties in session for hours last night and finally recessed at 12:40 a. m. (EST) until 2 p. m. today with both sides holding firm.

But in a joint statement Manno and Margolis said "everything is progressing very satisfactorily and we are looking for cheerful developments" this afternoon.

Mrs. Anne Benscoter, president of the Illinois telephone union, said in Washington she would advise her members to reject the Illinois Bell offer.

However, Edwin R. Hackett and Richard Long, presidents of two other unions involved, said in Chicago they were confident their members would accept it.

There were conflicting opinions as to whether a long lines wage agreement in Washington would furnish a pattern for washing up the whole rambling strike in the Bell System of A. T. & T.-controlled firms, now in its 27th day.

A long lines settlement did provide such a pattern, years ago, as a telephone strike was averted at the last moment.

George S. Dring, assistant vice president of the A. T. & T. long lines department, was asked whether he thinks a wage agreement in long lines will lead to a general settlement of the strike within a few days.

Dring replied: "Not necessarily. You appreciate, of course, that in no sense can I speak for the other companies. But it is a fact that each Bell company is responsible for operations in its own territory."

He said long lines employees make up about 5 per cent of the total number of Bell System employees, and that long lines operators are some 250 communities, while the other Bell companies serve about 7,000 cities and towns.

Meantime union and company negotiators for Western Electric and Southwestern Bell—two important Bell System units—were called back into session in Washington today. Little progress has been reported from these negotiations so far.

'Paratrouters' Conservation Department Will Stock Streams by Plane Now

Albany, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—The day of fish falling from the skies is here.

Baby trout have taken so well to flying that New York Conservation officials today envisioned a time when most of the state's lakes and streams would be "planted" from airplanes.

Experiments in planting fish by air have been so successful that the Conservation Department this year purchased a specially-fitted plane, to be used exclusively for hauling the "paratrouters" from the hatcheries to the streams. The trout simply are dumped out, of the low-flying plane, without so much as a "Geronimo."

Conservation officials say they survive such treatment without injury.

In fact, said O. R. Kingsbury, supervisor of fish distribution, fewer trout die than when slower transportation is used.

Dr. Weber succeeded Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb who had served as director on a part time basis for many years. Dr. Holcomb, who had given very generously of his time and ability to the work, was unable to accept a full time position but has been assisting in the work at the hospital.

Authority on Treatment
Considered one of the outstanding authorities on tuberculosis work, Dr. Weber had been serving as principal physician with the New York State Health Department's Division of Tuberculosis for 10 years in charge of tuberculosis control in all state custodial institutions. During the time he was with the State Department of Health he served two years as a major in the United States Public Health Service in the Middle East and in Italy.

Prior to entering state service he had been resident physician at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital from 1933 to 1936. He is a member of the National Tuberculosis Association and had done considerable research in tuberculosis work. He has completed a two year post-graduate course and did work at Sea View Tuberculosis Hospital, Staten Island, where for a year and a half he was resident in charge of thoracic surgery.

Under Dr. Weber it is planned to expand the tuberculosis control work in the county.

Mexico Welcomes American Capital

Aleman Asserts Businessmen Operating Without Greed Are Invited to Deal in Country

New York, May 3 (AP)—Mexico welcomes American capital "willing to observe its laws and be satisfied with a fair profit," says President Miguel Aleman.

Aleman, the first Mexican president to visit New York, told a dinner of the Pan American Society last night.

"American capital that really means to share in the life of Mexico; that is willing to observe its laws and be satisfied with a fair profit, without selfish greed on the ill-gotten gains of a few, unto itself, shall be welcome to Mexico and will derive all the advantages that American citizens who are cooperating with us in the economic development of my country are actually enjoying."

Quotes Roosevelt
The Mexican president, who spoke in Spanish, recalled with approval these words of the late President Roosevelt at Monterrey, Mexico, in 1943: "We know that the days of the exploitation of the resources and the people of one country for the benefit of any group in another country are definitely over."

The special Palestine assembly of the United Nations scheduled an extraordinary meeting today to honor Aleman.

The session will be confined to ceremonies and brief addresses by Aleman and U. N. officials, Andrew A. Cordier, executive assistant to Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, said.

Receives Degree
Before the dinner honoring him, the Mexican president had a crowded day, including a traditional New York welcome with a Broadway automobile parade, award of honorary citizenship in New York and an honorary degree from Columbia University. Police estimated that despite the dull, rainy weather, 1,500,000 persons lined the flag-draped streets of the financial district and that another 1,000,000 watched the parade in other parts of the city.

Son Is Missing
Miguel Aleman, Jr., 14-year-old son of the visiting President of Mexico, was "missing" for 20 minutes yesterday, and U. S. and Mexican agents assigned to guard him had a nervous time.

The wiry, freckle-faced, hazel-eyed boy was riding in the rear of a motorcade enroute to a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore. When the procession reached the hotel, several cars, including the boy's, were missing.

It developed that some of the cars had been shunted to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel by mistake.

Located there, the boy was whisked to the Commodore, arriving in time for luncheon.

Earlier, the boy had said he wanted to see the city, but he was guarded by Secret Service men and police in his room on Continued on Page Five

Bell Company's Offer of $4 Is Accepted by Three Unions; 16,000 Must Ratify Deal

First Deviation

Washington Proposal Is $2, $3, $4 Based on Locality

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The first tentative wage settlement between a Bell System company and an affiliate of the National Federation of Telephone Workers hinted a break today in the nationwide telephone strike.

Four sets of negotiations in the capital were still deadlocked, but there were these two big developments:

1. In Chicago leaders of three N.F.T.W.-affiliated unions accepted $4 for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., subject to ratification by 16,000 members. It was the first deviation in the N.F.T.W. from its demand for a nationwide boost of $6 a week.

2. In Washington, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company made its first money offer to its 20,000 long-distance employees. Though rejected by the American Union of Telephone Workers, this offer was a departure from the previous A. T. & T. position of offering to settle by arbitration but making no money proposals.

The offer was $2, $3, or $4, depending partly on the geographic locality. Thus it was not an across-the-board arrangement.

Both Sides Hold Firm
After the rejection, government conciliators Peter J. Mann and William N. Margolis kept the parties in session for hours last night and finally recessed at 12:40 a. m. (EST) until 2 p. m. today with both sides holding firm.

But in a joint statement Mann and Margolis said "everything is progressing very satisfactorily and we are looking for cheerful developments" this afternoon.

Mrs. Anne Benscoter, president of the Illinois telephone union, said in Washington she would advise her members to reject the Illinois Bell offer.

However, Edwin R. Hackett and Richard Long, presidents of two other unions involved, said in Chicago they were confident their members would ratify it.

There were conflicting opinions as to whether a long lines wage agreement in Washington would furnish a pattern for warring up the whole rambling strike in the Bell System of A. T. & T.-controlled firms, now in its 27th day.

A long lines settlement did provide such a pattern a year ago and a telephone strike was averted at the last moment.

George S. Dring, assistant vice president of the A. T. & T. long lines department, was asked whether he thought a wage agreement in long lines would lead to a general settlement of the strike within a few days.

Dring replied: "Not necessarily. You appreciate, of course, that in no sense can I speak for the other companies. But it is a fact that each Bell company is responsible for operations in its own territory."

He said long lines employees make up about 5 per cent of the total number of Bell System employees, and that long lines operates in some 250 communities, while the other Bell companies serve about 7,000 cities and towns.

Meanwhile, union and company negotiators for Western Electric and Southwestern Bell—two important Bell System units—were called back into session in Washington today. Little progress has been reported from these negotiations so far.

'Paratrouters'
Conservation Department Will Stock Streams by Plane Now

Albany, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—The day of fish falling from the skies is here.

Baby trout have taken so well to flying that New York Conservation officials today envisioned a time when most of the state's lakes and streams would be "planted" from airplanes.

Experiments in planting fish by air have been so successful that the Conservation Department this year purchased a specially-fitted plane, to be used exclusively for hauling the "paratrouters" from the hatcheries to the streams. The trout simply are dumped out of the low-flying plane, without so much as a "Geronimo."

Conservation officials say they survive such treatment without injury.

In fact, said O. R. Kingsbury, supervisor of fish distribution, fewer trout die than when slower transportation is used.

Navy Plans

Large Sums Are Asked to Modernize Ships, Improve Bases

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The navy asked Congress to authorize a $12,500,000 public works program for its bases and proposed a $25,000,000 plan for modernizing combat ships.

The public works program, outlined in a statement yesterday and sent to the House, would spend $25,000,000 on bases in Newfoundland, Alaska, Guam, Pearl Harbor, Puerto Rico, the Panama Canal Zone, Greenland, and San Juan.

The schedule for improvements at bases in the United States called for expenditure of $67,300,000 on improvement programs, many of them for research and testing new weapons.

Projects proposed by the navy for bases in the United States include:

Naval magazine, Montauk Island, N. Y., acquire 44 acres.

Special devices center, Sands Point, N. Y., acquire 161 acres.

Rain Postpones Baseball Opener; Nyack Here Sunday at 2 p. m.

Rain and wet grounds today caused postponement of the Kingston Dodgers' 1947 home inaugural in the North Atlantic Class D League.

Business Manager Paul Taylor said the season would get under way on Sunday at 2 p. m., with a doubleheader against the Nyack Rocklands.

Meanwhile, members of the Dodgers' club's board of directors and Brooklyn Dodgers officials attended a public reception for the club at the Barn today at 1 o'clock. Branch Ruckley, Jr., was present.

The intermittent rains of the past two days had turned municipal stadium into a quagmire that made it impossible for play. The Dodgers management held off the postponement announcement until the last minute.

Pre-game ceremonies which include the raising of the flag and the first-ball ceremony by Mayor William F. Edmonds will be staged starting at 1:45 p. m.

2,000 Expected
Clearing weather and possible sunny skies was expected to attract a throng of at least 2,000 to the uptown ball park for Kingston's first game in organized ball since the collapse of the Hudson River League in 1917.

Manager George "Sugar" Scherger's Dodgers, rated among the top clubs in the circuit, will be seeking their second and third victories of the season. The Dodgers pummeled the Bloomingdale, N. J., nine, 12-4, with a barrage of home runs in the league opener Thursday night.

A pair of contrasting right-handers—Tom Sigmund and Canadian-born Ted Seddon—were nominated by Manager Scherger as the Kingston pitching selections. Tom Corrigan, of Tillson, was expected to catch the opener.

Nyack is expected to counter with Reetz and Hoffman, two of the top hurlers in the league last season. Another standout on the Nyack roster is Bill Dietrich, heavy hitting first sacker, who was among the top five batters during the 1946 campaign.

Hit Three Homers
The Dodgers got excellent pitching from Ray Cutler in the Bloomingdale game and flashed a heavy hitting attack, with Left Fielder "Knobby" Rosa piling two homers and Manager Scherger accounting for the third round tripper.

Kingston's starting array will show Sigmund and Seddon and Corrigan as the battery. The infield will be made up of Warfield, first; Scherger, second base; Williams, third base; and Starozky at shortstop. Rosa, Cahill and Orleans have been assigned the picket jobs.

Seddon, a Canadian flinger who was scouted and signed by A. E. "Turk" Karam, is a strapping right-hander with a live, fast ball. Sigmund is a stuff pitcher who employs a deceptive three-quarter pitching motion.

Virtually every fan that goes through the stadium turnstiles will be seeing the Dodgers in action for the first time. Bad weather during the past several days reduced public attendance at the club's workouts to almost nothing. The starting lineups:

Good Taste Today

'COMPANY' IN THE KITCHEN

A reader tells me: "Recently a controversy arose as to whether guests (close friends, relatives or others) should feel obliged to help with the clearing and washing of dishes after enjoying the meal and hospitality of their host and hostess. I maintain that since the average woman spends most of her days in the kitchen, it's a treat for her to go out to dinner without feeling that kitchen duty awaits her, plus the fear of spots for her special dress. Consequently, I never expect my guests to help me. In fact, for other reasons such as giving them extra aprons and towels and answering a succession of questions such as, 'Where do I put this?' and 'Where does this go?' I prefer to send them into the living room, while I myself put the leftover away and merely stack the dishes for my husband and me to do after their departure. Do you take sides with me or with my opponents?"

Fish Rather Strange

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it improper to serve fish for the main dish at a wedding dinner? We will have a sit-down reception following a 6 o'clock wedding and would like not to choose poultry or meat.

Encouraging First Name
Dear Mrs. Post: A number of my friends have daughters, in the late teens, away at college and with whom I correspond. They always begin their letters "Dear Mrs. Jones" which is the way they also speak to me. On the other hand, have been signing these letters simply by first name. Is that correct?

Period of Mourning
Dear Mrs. Post: What is considered a decent mourning period for two persons who are upper middle age and both widowed?

Answer: Six months is the shortest. A year is more correct.

Many questions arise when a wedding is being planned. Mrs. Post explains all the details in her booklet, No. 501, "The Etiquette of Weddings." To obtain a copy send 10 cents (coin preferred) and a 3-cent stamp to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Rappa-Amelia Wedding Takes Place In Marlborough

The bride was escorted by her father-in-law. She wore a white chignon gown with square neckline trimmed with lace and a long train edged in similar lace. Her full length veil was caught to a headpiece of chiffon wedding bells. She carried an arm bouquet of Easter lilies.

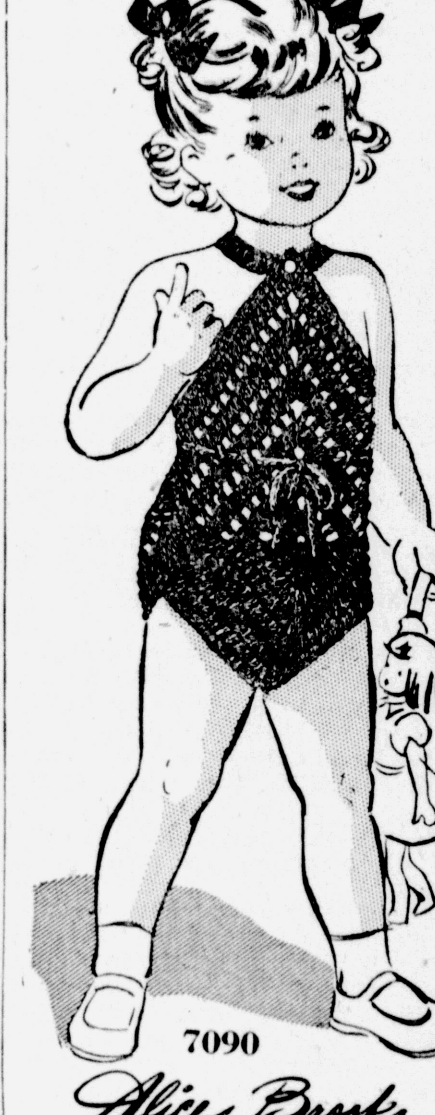

Miss Ann Rappa, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, wore a yellow faille and marquisette gown with matching headpiece trimmed with purple flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow tea roses and lavender sweet peas.

Joseph Rappa acted as best man for his brother. A large reception was held Sunday evening at the Moose Hall in Newburgh. Jack Clark and his orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Mr. Rappa served three and a half years in the army and saw action in Europe.

Following a trip to Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Rappa will reside at 189 Orange street, Marlborough.

Court Santa Maria Sends Clothing to Chinese Mission

Court Santa Maria 164, Catholic Daughters of America, sent 119 robes and 96 caps to the Maryknoll Sisters this week which will be relayed to their orphanage in China. This project of the local court is under the direction of Miss Nan Lloyd.

Reports from the Chinese orphanage show that the pagan Chinese who live on the junk and sampans in the inlet of the Pearl River still discard the girl babies. The mission look-outs assisted by the chow dogs bring them into the mission where they are raised to womanhood. They are trained in all walks of life. Vestments worn by the clergy are made at the orphanage.

Outing flannel and yarn have been distributed among the members to continue this work.

HOOPER DAM
To a Quaker, personal honors can mean very little, for their way of life abhors the swelling of the individual's ego to an assumption of immortality because of public services. Yet it is nice to be remembered and it is warming to know that one's contemporaries seek for means to acknowledge one's worth.
And curiously in such matters Harry Truman is a nobler personality than his predecessor. Harry Truman is a good sport, a gentleman. He never went to Groton but he undoubtedly learned at his mother's knee that vindictiveness and malice are not Christian traits.
And so he signed the bill restoring Hoover Dam to its original name. It is not a world-curbing act. It is nothing that will make Herbert Hoover a greater man than he is. It will not make the dam more useful. But it is a nice and decent thing to do—a gesture in manners to which the truly well-mannered respond automatically. Harry Truman's mother must be a fine American woman; her son's normal responses are so wholesome.
The most important part of the program at the big dinner at the newspaper convention in New York a week ago was hardly noted in the press. Apparently the working reporters were too concerned with mimeographed handouts of a poor speech to catch the flavor of high drama. Yet it was there in a spontaneous tribute paid to Herbert Hoover—so spontaneous that he could not and did not respond to it except in an expression on his face that might have been the struggle to withhold a tear.
Mr. Hoover has been damned and blasted more than any contemporary in the most venomous smear campaign ever devised to pillory one individual for decades of economic fallacy for which he was not and could not be responsible. He did not make World War I and therefore could not have arranged the course of events which were born in it and have grown into such lusty demons in our age. The newspapers of this country have, in these many years since 1929, not been very kind to Mr. Hoover. Many of them have often blamed him for conduct which they excused in others. He became the whipping boy of a nation and whoever sought someone to lick, hit out at him. He has taken all that in his stride without malice, without fear, without ever bearing a grudge.
Yet, in his 73rd year, he was presented to these assembled publishers and their friends and they rose and cheered him as the ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria had never heard cheers. And when the chairman suggested that they break their custom of toasting only the President of the United States, they toasted Mr. Hoover not as an ex-President, not as a partisan politician, not as a friend of Hoover, but as a beloved servant of his country and of mankind; as one who has, in his old age, traveled the world at the sacrifice of his health, to find a way to restore food and work and a modicum of happiness to the weary and heavy-laden.
And so it will again be Hoover Dam. God's water will flow over the dam into the valleys that they enrich and none of the little children playing in the fields and meadows will ever realize the deep hurt of having a name erased, even if it is later restored. Nor will they realize that there were once men in America who took history by the forelock and tried to assure themselves immortality by being remembered.

But history has its own way of determining where greatness truly is. And it takes its own time to weigh in the balance the virtues that are eternal. Those virtues are never in words or voice or beauty of person nor even in the acclaim of the moment. The sustaining virtues of history are always means to the accomplishment of an individual in his services for bettering the life of his fellowmen. In that realm, Herbert Hoover stands a colossus in our age.

That Body of Yours
By James W. Barton, M. D.

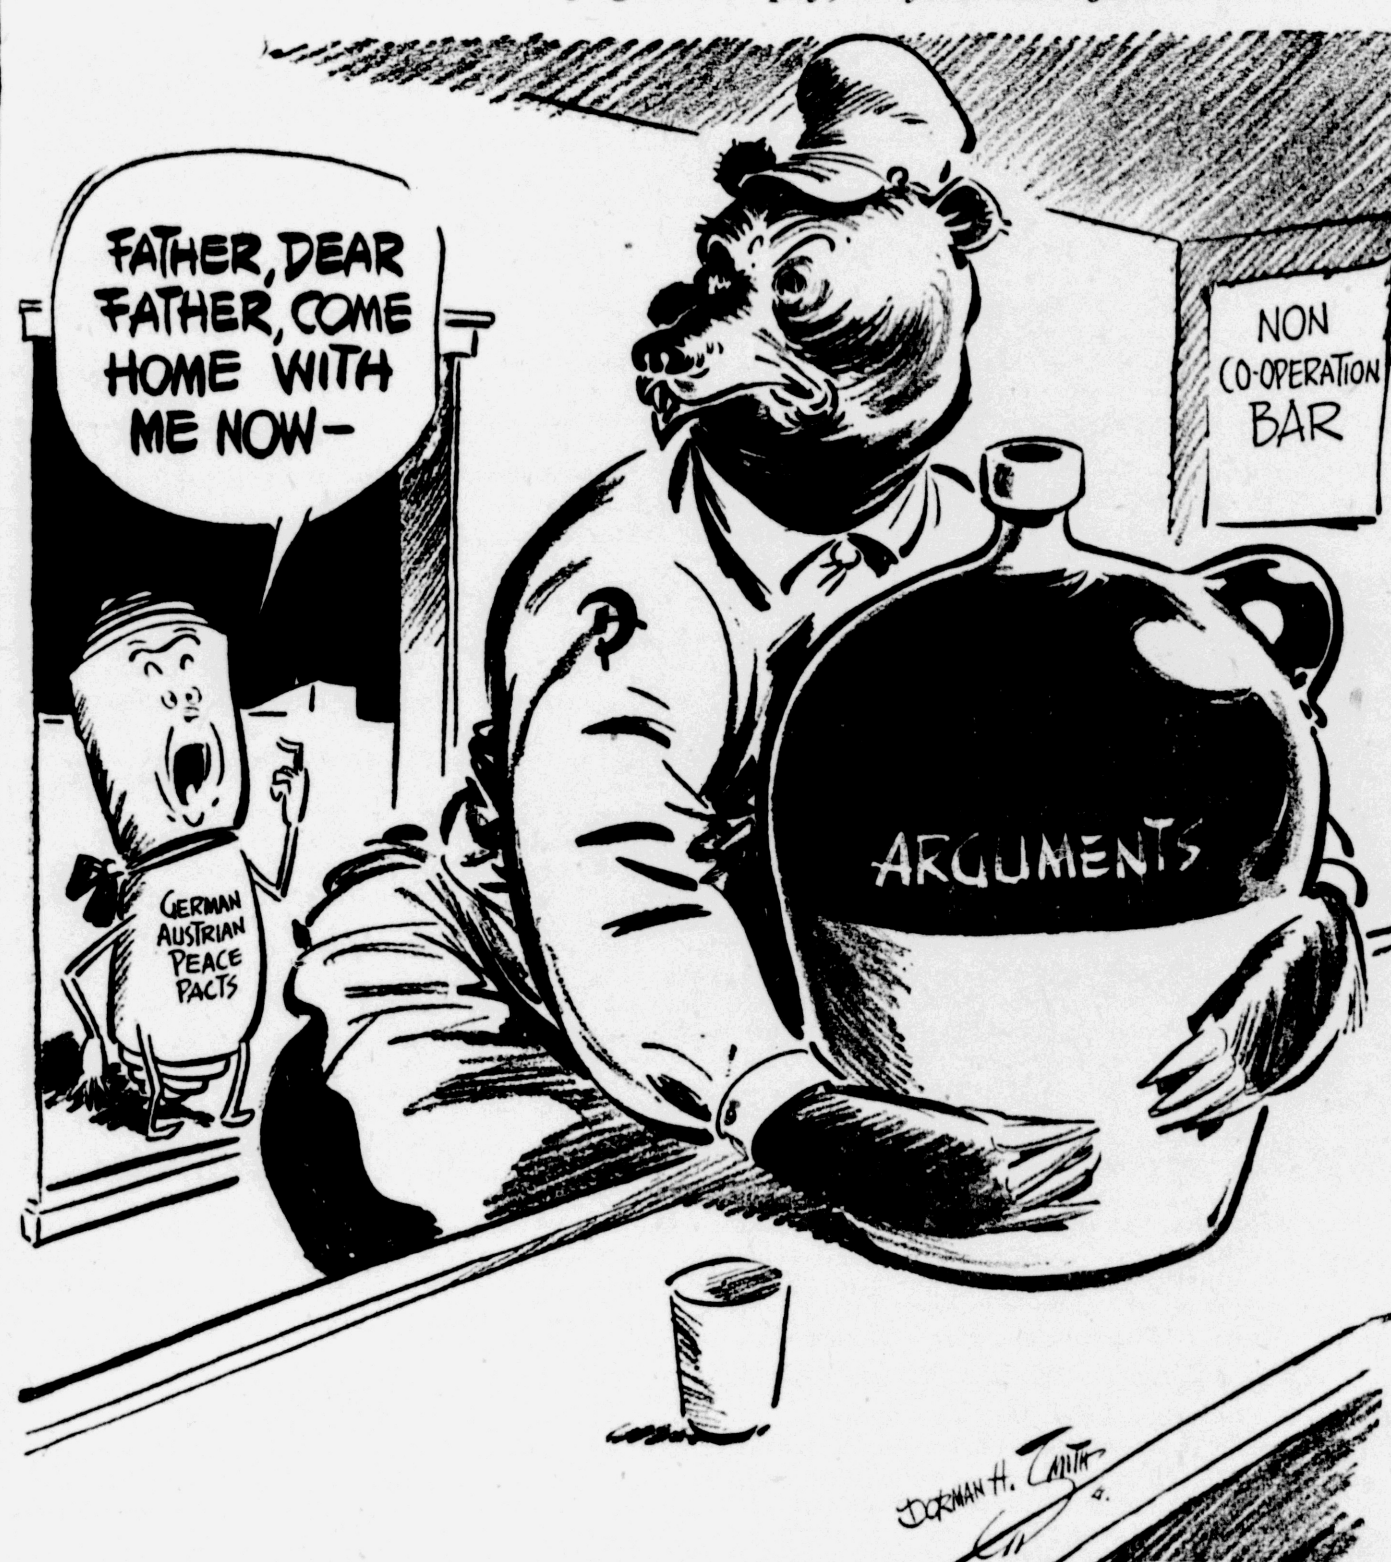

REMOVAL OF GALL BLADDER
Before women stopped wearing tight corsets, it was a common saying that a woman who had suffered with gall stones was fair, fat, and forty. Since women have done away with tight corsets, the number of cases has decreased but still the women outnumber the men with gall stones by two to one.
The fact that gall stones are commoner in women than in men is believed due to the sex hormones, as they are active earlier in women than in men. The fact, also, that it is at or toward middle age—near the menopause—when gall stone symptoms are most severe, points to some derangement of the sex glands. This affects the working of the gall bladder, causing it to develop or deposit gall stones within it.
Added to the derangement of the sex glands is often a mental or emotional change, which also affects the gall bladder and causes formation of gall stones. A sort of mucoid or "sticky" substance manufactured by the walls of the gall bladder, causes the tiny stones to stick together and form a large stone and symptoms.
What should be done about gall stones?
As the majority of individuals with gall stones do not know they have them and have no symptoms, no treatment is given. If, however, attacks of gall stone colic occur, physicians now advise the removal of the gall bladder.
In the New England Journal of Medicine, Drs. Howard Clute and E. R. Kenney, Boston, state that the removal of the gall bladder for chronic inflammation of the gall bladder and formation of stones is now very safe. Of 201 cases, only one was lost. "But patients must not be admitted one day and operated on the next. Time must be taken to make certain that the diagnosis is correct and there are no complications such as anemia or weakness of the heart."
By careful observation, X-ray and dye tests, and strengthening the patient by giving liquids, sugar, and proteins, the removal of the gall bladder is not the "dangerous" operation of former years.
Liver and Gall Bladder
The liver does more different kinds of work than any other organ in the body. Anything that interferes with its work upsets all the body processes. The gall bladder can cause many disturbing symptoms. Send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp to The Bell Syndicate, Box 99, Station G, New York 19, New York, mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman, and ask for the booklet, "Liver and Gall Bladder." Not Until the Jug Is Empty, Says Uncle Joe

Lifelines
C. R. DOUGLAS

Since March 31, 1848 when the Fox Sisters were alleged to have first communicated with the spirits at Hydesville near Rochester, N. Y., many spiritualistic movements have been afoot throughout the world. Again this year it was predicted that the time is now at hand when you can call up your favorite spirit by telephone.
Past seances and demonstrations, however, have indicated that things more tangible—like holding the hand of a pretty Brooklyn girl, for instance, have more appeal to most humans than the weird aspects of the seance.
An article in The Freeman, issue of January 13, 1948, seemed to illustrate this point well enough. It was headed: "Bluebell Did Not Materialize," and explained:
"Spiritualist Samuel Thompson of Kingston denied the absence of passive intellects in a New York seance," and contained an account of the seance from the New York Herald which reported:
"Bluebell, a frail flower of the spirit world, wilted early Sunday morning under the glare of scepticism, and has been sent back for a time to the greenhouses of Brighteyesland."
"If her surroundings had been more congenial at the seance held last Saturday night in the home of Frank A. Hipple, 476 West 141st street, she might be blooming still at the rate of $12 a dozen."
"Her earth guardian, Samuel Thompson, who is attached to a sanitarium near Kingston, N. Y., says she will be better by and by, and he and she have gone back to the wooded dells of the Catskills. It was their joint debut in New York and both need a rest."
"Twelve persons gathered in the Hipple apartment. The back parlor was used as a cabinet. Of the company 10 were sceptics, the most uncompromising of whom were a professional conjurer and a bewilderingly pretty Brooklyn girl."
"Mr. Thompson said that first, of course, he must be bound, and to save trouble he went behind the curtain and had some of his spirit friends tie his wrists together with window cord. The conjurer tried to pry his wrists apart, but they were so held together that it was more than could be done."
"Then the earth guide of Bluebell asked two persons to twine their fingers together and to place one pair of hands on the top of his head and extend the other outward. Then the lights were turned out."
"Everybody please join hands," said a faint voice from behind the curtain.
There was a rustle in the circle outside in the direction of the sofa on which the pretty Brooklyn girl was sitting.
"Why all you men can't hold my hand," said a low musical voice.
"Less argument," ordered the earth guide, speaking without the aid of Bluebell.
Then, said the story, came a faint slap from within where one Miss Jennie Jones and Alexis Smith were stationed.
"Oh dear!" cried Miss Jones. I want to get away from here. I don't want to be on the shoulder. Oh, it's tugging at my skirt. Oh, this is perfectly dreadful!
"Jennie! Jennie!" cried a stern voice, "don't you do anything of the kind. You are a good subject. Don't you dare?"
Miss Jones appeared, emerged to tell of clammy hands on her brow and strange lights dancing about. But when the lights went up again Thompson was still bound. Four other tests brought the same tappings, tuggings and whispering, but when the reporter and the conjurer bound the medium's hands to his legs there were no manifestations.
Then "despite all precautions which science had taken," said the article, the Brooklyn girl and a literary man, got the tuggings and tappings.
"Now you stop!" the pretty

AS PEGLER SEES IT
By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For more than three months, committees of the House and Senate in Washington heard again the story of the cynical, corrupt and brutal administration of the unions of the United States. Claiming to be "the labor movement," these unions have been, in fact, oppressors and betrayers of labor and enemies of the people. The powers conferred on the bosses of the movement have been used to terrorize and sell out the workers and to prey upon the whole community. The facts presented to these committees had been known for years and there was no actual need to consume the time of the committee members and the people's money recording them once more.
The excuse for all this was that the people needed a refresher course in the perils of an organized and privileged system of labor, graft and native Fascism far more dangerous than the Ku Klux Klan of the twenties, so that they would be ready to accept laws to subdue it. Many volumes of testimony have been printed and these will be put away on shelves and not one single individual will ever take the time and trouble to read them through. They are a repetition of an oft-told record that is a disgrace to the country and a complete disqualification of the political fakery, by mistaken courtesy called labor leaders, who contrived the outrage or suffered it to continue.
The people needed no refresher course in this rotten phase of the history of the labor movement. They elected the Republican Congress last fall as a protest against these very conditions. It is more important than the recent black market and the shortages of food and apparel, as the retailers showed in states where the voters were overwhelmingly adopted explicit laws against the closed shop and other oppressive customs.
There are no labor statesmen in the United States nor any qualified to lead the labor movement. The very best of the bosses are only union politicians, wary or boldly pitting their thousands of subjects against other battalions or against the whole of society in contests for personal power, importance and money. Many labor leaders who demands or defends the closed shop and the check-off of dues thereby discredit himself by the implicit admission that his members are not loyal followers but subjects who would escape this situation if Congress or the State Legislatures would let them and would not pay dues if they didn't have to.
A forgotten point in connection with the conduct of all the boss unionists is the duty of every citizen to report to the police or the district attorney evidence of unlawful conduct. In business, a man who knowingly permits or crookedly subordinate or associate to steal and helps him to cover up his crime is chargeable as an accomplice or accessory and may be imprisoned. A citizen who knows that his neighbor has committed a holdup and fails to report his knowledge may be prosecuted. Recently, in the unimportant field of professional sport, men have been hauled before the governing authorities and prosecuting agencies in the status of suspects and have been ruled out.

Brooklyn girl was heard to say, "I'll scream if you don't!"
Then, "Don't come out of the cabinet," warned a stern voice in the circle—There didn't I tell you Mr. Magician, that it all depends on the subject?"
After that said the article, Bluebell tried to materialize in every way possible, but without avail. The medium expressed himself as extremely displeased and advised that the demonstration would be better at some later date when "more passive intellects" attended.

Every professional unionizer knows these facts. Every informed writer on political matters knows them, although many shyers among them, professing to be liberals, never mention such evils and attribute the great public anger to some mysterious power of the soulless corporations.
Since the coming of the iniquitous Wagner Act, devised only to enslave labor under a new set of bosses, the great fakery has abided the growth of conditions so horrid that the institution of unionism has become a hated oppression. It could have been handled some and respected elements of American society and politics today had honest men been available.

The real enemies of American labor are the rulers of the unions. (Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TAXATION MUST NOT DESTROY WEALTH

The man who pays taxes is entitled to know for what purpose or purposes he is being taxed.
John W. Hanes told the Senate finance committee last week that the New Deal has been using taxation to promote Socialism.
To the observant American citizen Mr. Hanes' statement was no news. But coming from the man who was formerly Undersecretary of the Treasury and who therefore sat in on many closeted conferences with New Deal planners, the statement is significant. It is a reminder of the falseness and duplicity of our administration for fifteen years, an administration which often has mouthed sentiments in favor of private enterprise while working secretly to destroy it.
Asking no privileges for the rich, Mr. Hanes nevertheless pointed out that the New Deal's surtax schedule left little incentive to the man who earned $100,000 or more a year.
He showed that present surtaxes went far beyond "the point of diminishing returns and became, in fact, purely punitive levies against wealth as it is expressed in the form of income."
The tax schedule has seriously discouraged "the country's managerial capacity employed to direct our most productive sources of talent and energy. Some of these people have retired in discouragement. Others have pulled their punches. All presently will become less willing to risk, or to assume managerial responsibility for others who might be willing to risk capital."
Hanes did not challenge the principle that the rich and near-rich should pay more, and should pay more in proportion, than the rest of the country. He simply pointed out that the government cannot take virtually all without drying up the source of revenue.
The motive of the planners was an attack on the "economic royalists" who furnish much of the investment capital which management must render productive.
In framing the 1948 tax formula, what are the motives of the framers? Are we to be taxed purely for revenue? Is the new tax bill going to dry up potential billions in investment capital, billions which would create jobs for millions of workers? Is it going to be so shaped as to cater to a "class" of voters?
Above all, the 1948 tax schedule must not destroy nor "discourage" the source of revenue.
With a debt of $258,000,000,000 hanging over our heads we must, on the other hand, encourage by every possible means the expansion of capital. Hanes pointed out at a timely moment that "the history of the repayment of all great national debts contracted during war periods shows that reduction is brought about by the creation of wealth through production."
This generation, confused by the magnitude of the public debt, may take at least a measure of courage from the knowledge that the public right after the Civil War experienced a similar state of mind. Men said they would never be able to pay off the war debt. But the new wealth created by war time expansion plus the new courage born of big production, had much to do with the subsequent era of prosperity which readily whittled down the debt.
We now have several billion dollars worth of new industrial plants left from the war. The laboratories have produced new and tantalizing discoveries, for our comfort and enjoyment. We have developed enormously advanced know-how; several million more skilled hands and heads, than in the dispirited 1920s. We have renewed courage and vigor. We have no time to sit and argue the question which recurs to poison us: every generation or so: Have we not at last reached the end of industrial progress?
Who knows but we will push the national income to a new high within the next two or three years and go into a long period of prosperity and debt repaying?
It is certain that we shall have no success if we tax our wealth for punitive or socialistic purposes.

Tax, Foreign Relief Bills Await G.O.P. Priority

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The G.O.P. leadership called for a decision today on whether tax reduction or foreign affairs go to the head of the Senate's waiting list.

Both must mark time until the Senate votes, possibly next week, on the slow-moving labor bill.

Chairman Taft (Ohio) summoned the Party Policy Committee to agree on which should come next—the House-approved measure for slashing income taxes 10 to 30 percent or the administration's $350,000,000 Foreign Relief Bill.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee has been pressing for action on the relief legislation, which was cut to $200,000,000 by the House. After that, Vandenberg has said he wants the Senate to take up the peace treaties with Italy, Bulgaria, Hungary and Roumania.

Mario Vitetta Is Secured For Woodstock Music Series

Woodstock, May 3—The Woodstock String Quartet, having previously announced its series of nine concerts for the coming summer scheduled for the Methodist Hall at Woodstock, is particularly fortunate in having Mario Vitetta as first violin and musical leader.

Mr. Vitetta enjoys the reputation of being the master of his instrument, and would be better known to Woodstock audiences as an exceptional musician and violinist.

The effect of the different moods expressed in these sketches is not alone interesting, but original. Gifted with an unusual technical facility, Mr. Vitetta has not hesitated to impose equally difficult problems upon the other members of the quartet.

The first public performance of this work will be presented at the opening concert of the series. Gabriel Peyre, violinist, has the distinction of being the Dean of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra. During his association with this world famous organization he has played under many distinguished conductors such as Hertz, Mottl, Mahler, Richard Strauss and Siegfried Wagner, and has heard such renowned singers as Jean de Resque, Caruso, Nordica, Destinn and Sembrich.

Twins daughters were born to Mrs. Carl Cousins at the Kingston Hospital, May 2.

Iron Worker Averts Crash As Cabbie Dies at Wheel

New York, May 3 (AP)—A taxicab out of control, with its dying driver slumped over the wheel, was brought to a stop in heavy traffic by a quick thinking motorist who swung his car in front of the cab in a deliberate collision, police said today.

The cab driver, Herman Wasserback, apparently died of a heart attack yesterday before an ambulance reached him.

Police said that Hugh Kelly, an iron worker, saw the cab lurching against the curbstone on Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive. Kelly turned in front of the cab and let it come to a stop against the rear of his own car.

Neither vehicle was badly damaged.

Brain Operation Is Reported Success In Relieving Pain

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Service Editor

Chicago, May 2 (AP)—Relief of pain, of all kinds, by the brain operation that has cured a good many mental troubles, was reported to the American College of Physicians today by Doctors Walter Freeman, and James W. Watts, of George Washington University, Washington.

This operation, Dr. Freeman said, shows that pain is probably always partly real and partly mental. The mental part of pain is worry, particularly looking ahead in fear that it is going to continue or to be worse.

The operation, prefrontal lobotomy, severs the main nerve connections between the forehead of the brain, just back of the forehead, and the rest of the brain. That portion of gray matter seems to be the seat of insanity, and also of worry.

The pain relief was discovered incidentally in people, now numbering thousands, who have had the operation for relief of mental troubles. The relief from suffering has been so dramatic that Dr. Freeman said in today's report:

"I believe this operation should be employed more frequently in patients with severe pain."

The old thing, he reported, is that the physical part of pain is never abolished by the operation. But in all cases the patients no longer mind the pain. Where they had said they could not endure the pain any longer, after operation the same people laughed at the pain and said it was nothing to worry about.

Dr. Freeman told of a man on the operating table with an abdomen so painful that he shrieked when it was touched. On this man's abdomen the doctor felt a hard lump, which was the painful place. He kept his hand there during the operation. At the instant the last nerve in the forehead was severed, the lump relaxed. The man never complained of the abdominal pain again.

Laughs at Pain

Dr. Freeman told of a taxi driver whose pain from shingles required $80 worth of morphine a week. The driver had to quit work. After the operation, he gained 50 pounds, laughed at his shingles pain, and returned to work.

A woman who said pain from hemorrhoids was so awful she could not work, after the operation got a job and worked until she was 70.

The brain operation is done with a local anesthetic and is said not to be painful. Although pain relief from these operations is immediate, there is a period of several months, a year, during which the brain was to learn over again to do what a person could before the surgery.

Only America Has Key to Deadlock, Wallace Declares

Cleveland, May 3 (AP)—Only America, says Henry A. Wallace, has the resources "to break the deadlock between the nations" which he contends is the result of the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers.

He referred to the President's proposal for loans to Greece and Turkey, reiterating the opposition he had expressed in his recent addresses in Europe.

Wallace said he agreed with Secretary of State George C. Marshall when he spoke of Europe, "the patient is dying while the doctors deliberate," and contended that Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and John Foster Dulles, a member of the American delegation to Moscow, "are exploiting this emergency for wrong ends."

Soaring Rice Prices Cause Raids on Shops

Shanghai, May 3 (AP)—The Shanghai Evening Post said tonight that more than 300 rice shops in Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, had been wrecked and looted in daylong rioting over the soaring price of China's staple diet.

Late reports said martial law had been declared in the city, located in the heart of China's rice-producing area. The city government was reported to have dumped a large consignment of rice on the market in an effort to force down prices.

In Shanghai, city authorities threatened to ration rice to halt skyrocketing prices which reached a high of 320,000 Chinese dollars a picul (133 1/3 pounds). The official price is 200,000 Chinese dollars (16.67) a picul.

Will Pool Opposition

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The A.F.L. and C.I.O., laying aside indefinitely any hope of becoming one big organization, went ahead today with plans to pool their opposition to sharp curbs on unions pending in Congress. This was all they had to show for a two-day peace conference which resulted in unanimous agreement that "organizing unity should be established within the American labor movement"—but rejection of each other's plans for bringing it about.

Sabotage Believed Cause

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—A spokesman for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said two large overhead cables were severed by gunfire yesterday near Waukegan, Ill., and that 1,000 recruits were thrown out of service temporarily. tion Courier, which suspended publication last January after having been strikebound since November 7, 1946, have been sold to a Philadelphia advertising man who has been planning publication of the paper in the very near future.

Richard W. Slocum, general manager of the Evening Bulletin, announced last night the sale of the Camden papers to Harold A. Stretch, who heads a group of Camden citizens and others having business interests in the Camden area.

Stretch, a native of New York city, resigned yesterday as advertising director of the Philadelphia Inquirer, a position to which he was named in 1938. He has been associated with newspaper advertising since 1909.

The Camden papers and the Philadelphia Record were struck by the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) in a dispute over higher wages. However, they continued to publish regularly until their suspension when they were purchased by the Evening Bulletin along with Radio Station WCAU.

BIGGER AND BETTER MEN

A scientist says men today are, on the average, more than an inch taller than their immediate forebears. Also, it seems, they are continuing to grow, so that the next generation probably will be taller than this.

Twentieth century man, however, would look like a pigmy beside the oldest man known, the gigantopithecus, who lived in caves in China half a million years ago and attained the largest size of any yet discovered. From then on man seems to have shrunk, with Cromagnon man who roamed about middle Europe 20,000 or 50,000 years ago being smaller, on down to the Middle Ages. Man reached his smallest average stature then. Suits of armor of that day would be much too small for service men of World War II.

Now it would appear that man is beginning to climb back to greater stature. The question is of interest largely to anthropologists. Most people won't care too much about the matter. What they are concerned with now is, not whether man is becoming a bigger species, but whether he is becoming a better one.

HIGHWAY SAFETY DRIVE

President Truman has set the saving of 10,000 lives as a minimum goal for his highway safety conference to be held in Washington from June 18 to 20. This figure was set in an informal talk to a group of newspapermen representing national and state press and publishers associations, which will aid in the highway safety program.

The President thanked the newspapers for their help in the efforts all of us are making to reduce the shocking cost in lives and human injuries of traffic accidents. He estimated last year's conference saved 6,500 lives, based on statistics showing a down turn in fatalities after it was held.

President Truman said big disasters such as railroad wrecks and hotel fires impress the individual but that many overlook that traffic accidents are taking even more lives. The people must understand that the aggregate of traffic accidents each year is a national tragedy.

ADVERTISING THE ATOM

One of the most simple and direct fundraising letters that has come to this desk is signed in a cramped hand, "A. Einstein." Albert Einstein is chairman of the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists. These world-renowned men state that they recognize their "inescapable responsibility to carry to our fellow citizens an understanding of the simple facts of atomic energy and its implications for society."

Calling atomic energy "the most revolutionary force since prehistoric man's discovery of fire, a basic power of the universe against which there is no defense," the scientists lay their faith in "man's ability to control his destiny through reason."

Adding that knowledge of atomic energy cannot be kept secret or exclusively national, this committee proposes a program of broad education on the dangers of this new force to all mankind. For this they ask a million dollars.

The sum asked is a fraction of that which has been expended and what will be appropriated for fission work. It is a curious kind of insurance fund, asked of man, against his destruction.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

A bill, passed the other day by the New Jersey legislature, requires that anyone, even a fiction writer, using an assumed name, must register it with the Secretary of State. The reason for the law is said to be the prevalence of Communists who move around the country, and in and out of it, using names not their own, one individual frequently employing several.

An alias is an old device, and by no means a criminal one. Many writers come to mind better known now by their make-believe names than by their real cognomens. One has to think a bit to recall that George Eliot

'These Days'

HOOVER DAM

To a Quaker, personal honors can mean very little. For their way of life abhors the swelling of the individual's ego to an assumption of immortality because of public services. Yet it is nice to be remembered and it is warming to know that one's contemporaries seek for means to acknowledge one's worth.

And curiously in such matters Harry Truman is a nobler personality than his predecessor. Harry Truman is a good sport, a gentleman. He never went to Groton but he undoubtedly learned at his mother's knee that vindictiveness and malice are not Christian traits.

And so he signed the bill restoring Hoover Dam to its original name. It is not a wide-ranging act. It is nothing that will make Herbert Hoover a greater man than he is. It will not make the dam more useful. But it is a nice and decent thing to do—a gesture in manners to which the truly well-mannered respond automatically. Harry Truman's mother must be a fine American woman: her son's normal responses are so wholesome.

The most important part of the program at the big dinner at the newspaper convention in New York a week ago was hardly noted in the press. Apparently the working reporters were too concerned with mimeographed handouts of a poor speech to catch the flavor of high drama. Yet it was there in a spontaneous tribute paid to Herbert Hoover—so spontaneous that he could not and did not respond to it except in an expression on his face that might have been the struggle to withhold a tear.

Mr. Hoover has been damned and blasted more than any contemporary in the most venomous smear campaign ever devised to pillory one individual for decades of economic fallacy for which he was not and could not be responsible. He did not make World War I and therefore could not have arranged the course of events which were born in it and have grown into such lusty demons in our age. The newspapers of this country have, in these many years since 1929, not been very kind to Mr. Hoover. Many of them have often blamed him for conduct which they excused in others. He became the whipping boy of a nation and whoever sought someone to lick, hit out at him. He has taken all that in his stride without malice, without fear, without ever bearing a grudge.

Yet, in his 73rd year, he was presented to these assembled publishers and their friends and they rose and cheered him as the ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria had never heard cheers. And when the chairman suggested that they break their custom of toasting only the President of the United States, they toasted Mr. Hoover not as an ex-President, not as a partisan politician, not as a retired older but as a beloved servitor of his country and of mankind; as one who has, in his old age, traveled the road of the sacrifice of his health to find a way to restore food and work and a modicum of happiness to the weary and heavy-laden.

And so it will again be Hoover Dam. God's water will flow over the dam into the valleys that they enrich and none of the little children playing in the fields and meadows will ever realize the deep hurt of having a name erased, even if it is later restored. Nor will they realize that there were once men in America who took history by the forelock and tried to assure themselves immortality by begetting their peers.

But history has its own way of determining where greatness truly is. And it takes its own time to weigh in the balance the virtues that are eternal. Those virtues are never in words or voice or beauty of person nor even in the acclaim of the moment. The sustaining virtues of history are always measured by the accomplishments of an individual in his services for bettering the life of his fellowmen. In that realm, Herbert Hoover stands a colossus in our age. (Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

REMOVAL OF GALL BLADDER

Before women stopped wearing tight corsets, it was a common saying that a woman who had suffered with gall stones was fair, fat, and forty. Since women have done away with tight corsets, the number of cases has decreased but still the women outnumber the men with gall stones by two to one. The fact that gall stones are commoner in women than in men is believed to be due to hormones, as they are active earlier in women than in men. The fact, also that it is at or toward middle age—near the menopause—when gall stone symptoms are most severe, points to some derangement of the sex glands. This affects the working of the gall bladder, causing it to develop or deposit gall stones within it.

Added to the derangement of the sex glands is often a mental or emotional change, which also affects the gall bladder and causes formation of gall stones. A sort of mucous or "sticky" substance manufactured by the wall of the gall bladder, causes the tiny stones to stick together and form a large stone and symptoms.

What should be done about gall stones? As the majority of individuals with gall stones do not know they have them and have no symptoms, no treatment is given. If, however, attacks of gall stone colic occur, physicians now advise the removal of the gall bladder.

In the New England Journal of Medicine, Drs. Howard Cline and R. Kommer Boston, state that the removal of the gall bladder for chronic inflammation of the gall bladder and formation of stones is now very safe. Of 201 cases, only one was lost. "But patients must not be admitted one day and operated on the next. Time must be taken to make certain that the diagnosis is correct and there are no complications such as anemia or weakness of the heart."

By careful observation, X-ray and dye tests, and strengthening the patient by giving fluids, sugar, and proteins, the removal of the gall bladder is not the "dangerous" operation of former years.

Liver and Gall Bladder

The liver does more different kinds of work than any other organ in the body. Anything that interferes with its work upsets all the body processes. The gall bladder can cause many disturbing symptoms. Send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp to The Bell Syndicate, Box 99, Station G, New York 19, New York, mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman, and ask for the booklet, "Liver and Gall Bladder." Such pseudonyms are innocent disguises. If, as New Jersey seems to think, there is a growing tendency to use fictitious names for unlawful purposes, the law has some reason. Yet as so often happens, will it not be complicated by the guiltless like these fiction writers, and ignored by those using an alias for purposes of subterfuge?

The fascination of screen pictures of the Texas City disaster must be the same force which draws people from far and wide to see the gruesome evidence of a bad automobile crash. Both are impulses which millions of other people will never understand.

Not Until the Jug Is Empty, Says Uncle Joe

Lifelines
C. R. DOUGLAS

Since March 31, 1848 when the Fox Sisters are alleged to have first communicated with the spirits at Hydesville near Rochester, N. Y., many spiritualistic movements have been afoot throughout the world. Again this year it was predicted that the time is now at hand when you can call up your favorite spirit by telephone.

Past seances and dormant notions, however, have indicated that things more tangible—like holding the hand of a pretty Brooklyn girl, for instance, have more appeal to most humans than the weird aspects of the seance.

An article in The Freeman, issue of January 13, 1938, seems to illustrate this point well enough. It was headed: "Bluebell Did Not Materialize," and explained:

"Spiritualist Samuel Thompson of Kingston decried the absence of passive intellects in a New York seance," and contained an account of the seance from the New York Herald which reported:

"Bluebell, a frail flower of the spirit world, wilted early Sunday morning under the glare of septicism, and has been sent back for a time to the greenhouses of Brigt Eyesland."

"If her surroundings had been more congenial at the seance beginning last Saturday night in the home of Frank A. Hipple, 416 West 141st street, she might be blooming still at the rate of $2 a dozen."

"Her earth guardian, Samuel Thompson, who is attached to a sanitarium near Kingston, N. Y., says she will be better by and by, and he and she have gone back to the wooded dell of the Catskills. It was their joint debt in New York and both need a rest."

"Twelve persons gathered in the Hipple apartment. The back parlor was used as a cabinet. Of the company 10 were sepietics, the most uncompromising of whom were a professional conjurer and a bewilderingly pretty Brooklyn girl."

"Mr. Thompson said that first, of course, he must be bound, and to save trouble he went behind the curtain and had some of his spirit friends tie his wrists together with window cord. The conjurer tried to pry his wrists apart, but they were held together that it was more than could be done."

"Then the earth guide of Bluebell asked two persons to tie their fingers together and to place one pair of hands on the top of his head and extend the other outward. Then the lights were turned out."

"Everybody please join hands," said a faint voice from behind the curtain.

"There was a rustle in the circle outside in the direction of the sofa on which the pretty Brooklyn girl was sitting."

"Why all you men can't hold my hand," said a low musical voice. "Less argument," ordered the earth guide, speaking without the aid of Bluebell."

Then, said the story, came a faint slap from within where one Miss Jennie Jones and Alex Smith were stationed.

"Oh Dear!" cried Miss Jones. I want to get away from here. It is patting me on the shoulder. Oh, it's tugging at my skirt. Oh, this is perfectly dreadful!"

AS PEGLER SEES IT
By WESTBROOK PEGLER

For more than three months, committees of the House and Senate in Washington heard again the story of the cynical, corrupt and brutal administration of the unions of the United States. Claiming to be "the labor movement," these unions have been, in fact, oppressors and betrayers of labor and enemies of the people. The powers conferred on the bosses of the movement have been used to terrorize and sell out the workers and to prey upon the whole community. The facts presented to these committees had been known for years and there was no actual need to consume the time of the committee members and the people's money recording them once more.

The excuse for all this was that the people needed a refresher course in the peridy of an organized and privileged system of terror, graft and native Fascism far more dangerous than the Ku Klux Klan of the twenties, so that they would be ready to accept laws to subdue it. Many volumes of testimony have been printed and these will be put away on shelves and not one single individual will ever take the time and trouble to read them through. They are a repetition of an oft-told record that is a disgrace to the country and a complete disqualification of the political factors, by mistaken courtesy called labor leaders, who contrived the outrage or suffered it to continue.

The people needed no refresher course in this rotten phase of the history of the republic. It was all fresh in their minds when they elected the Republican Congress very conditions. It is more important than the recent black markets and the shortages of food and apparel, as the returns showed in states where the voters overwhelmingly adopted explicit laws against the closed shop and other oppressive customs.

There are no labor statesmen in the United States nor any qualified spokesmen for "labor." The very best of the bosses are only union politicians, wily or boldly pitting their thousands of subjects against other battalions or against the whole of society in contests for personal power, importance and money. Any boss unioneer who demands or defends the closed shop and the check-off of dues thereby discredits himself as an implicit admission that his members are not loyal followers, but subjects who would escape this thrudom if Congress or the State Legislatures would let them and would not pay dues if they didn't have to.

For forgotten gain in connection with the conduct of every citizen is the duty of every citizen to report to the police or the district attorney evidence of unlawful conduct. In business, a man who knowingly permits a crooked subordinate or associate to steal and helps him to cover up his crime is chargeable as an accomplice or accessory and may be sent to prison. A citizen who knows that his neighbor has committed a holdup and fails to report his knowledge may be prosecuted. Recently, in the unimpaired field of professional sport, men have been hauled before the governing authorities and prosecuted for aiding in the status of suspects and have been ruled out.

Brooklyn girl was heard to say, "I'll scream if you don't." Then, "Don't come out of the cabinet," warned a stern voice in the circle—There didn't I tell you Mr. Magician, that it all depends on the subject?"

After that said the article, Bluebell tried to materialize in every way possible, but without avail. The medium expressed himself as extremely displeased and advised that the demonstration would be better at some later date when "more passive intellects" attended.

of competition in disgrace merely because they failed to report immediately that they had been invited to accept bribes.

Compare the standards here with those of the men who are falsely honored as statesmen and leaders of American labor. Far from upholding the law and the authority of government, they have uniformly lived by the code of the underworld, which holds the squelcher in contempt lest he squander become general practice to the jeopardy of them all.

In all the prosecutions of gangsters and operators of the shake-down against both workers and employers, not one union official of national rank has come forward to give information that almost all of them possessed. And the prosecutors, politically fearful lest they be smeared as labor-baiters, have refrained from calling them as unwilling witnesses. Does anyone think it possible that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, the rulers of the C.I.O., were ignorant of the racketeering by Joe Ray, of the Operating Engineers, of the brazen looting by the permit racketeers on the war construction jobs or the treacheries of Communists?

The duty of citizenship is not waived by law in the case of the union official. Indeed, if these men are actually devoted to labor as a cause, they have an additional obligation to keep wicked men out and inform the public authorities against crooks and traitors. They owe a special obligation to the people whose lives they rule to protect the name of labor from scandal and general public enmity. But they are not devoted to labor as a cause. They are devoted to unionism as a predatory racket and a political game. They and the corrupt regime that gave them their great power boldly placed unionism in a position of immoral and often lawless hostility to the workers and the people. Their own system of union courts is as cynical and cruel as the people's courts of Adolf Hitler. They deny the American citizen access to the public courts in union disputes until all the complicated avenues and blind alleys of union jurisprudence have been explored, meanwhile persecuting poor petitioners for ordinary justice and delaying matters until the statute of limitations has run against them in the public courts, and the public courts, corrupted by the New Deal, have upheld all this as justice and good, technical law.

Every professional unioneer knows these facts. Every informed writer on political matters knows them, although many shyers among them, professing to be liberals, never mention such evils and attribute the great public anger to some mysterious power of the soulless corporations.

Since the coming of the iniquitous Wagner Act, devised only to enslave labor under a new set of bosses, the great fakery have abided the growth of conditions so heinous that the institution of unionism has become a hated oppressor. It could have been a handsome and respected element of American society and politics to have had honest men been available.

The real enemies of American labor are the rulers of the unions. (Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TAXATION MUST NOT DESTROY WEALTH

The man who pays taxes is entitled to know for what purpose or purposes he is being taxed.

John W. Hanes told the Senate finance committee last week that the New Deal had been using taxation to promote Socialism.

To the observant American citizen Mr. Hanes' statement was no news. But coming from the man who was formerly Undersecretary of the Treasury and who therefore sat in on many closed conferences with New Deal planners, the statement is significant. It is a reminder of the falseness and duplicity of our administration for fifteen years, an administration which often has mouthed sentiments in favor of private enterprise while working secretly to destroy it.

Asking no privileges for the rich, Mr. Hanes nevertheless pointed out that the New Deal's surtax schedule left little incentive to the man who earned $100,000 or more a year.

He showed that present surtaxes went far beyond the point of diminishing returns and became, in fact, purely punitive levies against wealth as it is expressed in the form of income.

The tax schedule has seriously discouraged "the country's managerial capacity employed to direct our industrial enterprises." If the treasury took all that now remains of income above $100,000 a year the total increased revenue would not be enough to run this government three days.

In other words, we have virtually removed the profit motive from our best managerial brains, our inventors, our foremost artists and professional people, our greatest organizers, our Henry Fords and Thomas Edisons.

The result has been to discourage our most productive sources of talent and energy. Some of these people have retired in discouragement. Others have pulled every punch. All presently will become more willing to assume managerial responsibility for others who might be willing to risk capital.

Hanes did not challenge the principle that the rich and near-rich should pay more, and should pay more in proportion than the rest of the country. He simply pointed out that the government cannot take virtually all without drying up the source of revenue.

The motive of the planners was an attack on the "economic royalists" who furnish much of the investment capital which management must render productive.

In framing the 1948 tax formula, what are the motives of the framers? Are we to be taxed purely for revenue? Is the new tax bill going to dry up potential billions in investment capital for millions of workers? Is it going to be so shaped as to cater to a "class" voter?

Above all, the 1948 tax schedule must not destroy nor "discourage" the source of revenue.

With a debt of $258,000,000,000 hanging over our heads we must on the other hand, encourage by every possible means the expansion of capital, Hanes pointed out at a timely moment that "The history of the repayment of all great national debts contracted during war periods shows that reduction is brought about by the creation of wealth through production."

This generation, confused by the magnitude of the public debt may take at least a measure of courage from the knowledge that the public right after the Civil War experienced a similar state of mind. Men said they would never be able to pay off the war debt. But the new wealth created by war time expansion plus the new courage born of big production, had much to do with the subsequent era of prosperity which readily whittled down the debt.

We now have several billion dollars worth of new industrial plants left from the war. The laboratories have produced new and tantalizing discoveries, for our comfort and enjoyment. We have developed enormously advanced know-how; several million more skilled hands and heads, than in the dispirited 1930s. We have renewed courage and vigor. We are so busy producing that we have no time to sit and argue the question which recurs to poison us: every generation or so: Have we not reached the end of industrial progress?

Who knows but we will push the national income to a new high within the next two or three years and go into a long period of prosperity and debt repaying?

It is certain that we shall have no such success if we tax our wealth for punitive or socialistic purposes. (Copyright 1947 by John F. Dulle)

Italians Strike in Protest Over May Day Slayings

Rome, May 3 (AP)—Workers throughout Italy, except those in public services and utilities, left their benches and offices today in a general strike to protest the May Day ambush machine gunning of a workers' and peasants' parade in Sicily.
A resolution of the nationally powerful general labor confederation calling the strike did not say how long it should last, but the general understanding was that the strikers would stay out only a few hours. In Rome the chamber of labor summoned them to a mass meeting at the Basilica Di Massenzio, near the ancient Roman forum.
Eight persons were killed and 33 wounded among 400 in the May Day parade, machine gunned at Piazza Della Ginestra near Palermo Thursday morning by mounted gunmen on a hill 300 yards away. Two of the dead were women. The Socialist newspaper Avanti said another was a 10-year-old boy.

Bluestone Goes for Dutchess Bridges

First loads of stone cut in a quarry at High Woods were hauled from there this week to four bridge projects east of Poughkeepsie. The blocks, cut to order of contractors and under specifications of the state highway department, were shaped from bluestone from the local quarry and from graystone hauled from the valley of the East

Branch of the Delaware near Downsville, Delaware county Standing near some of the finished stone is George Whitaker who is operating the project with Joseph Hallion. Five other men are employed on the job which has been under way for 11 months. The stone is numbered before it leaves the quarry to prevent delay in construction on the bridge projects. Two Fliers Are Killed In Utica Plane Crash

Utica, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Two men were killed last night when their light, private passenger plane crashed about two miles north of the Utica municipal airport.

The dead were identified as Henry C. Petermann, 22, of (R.F.D. 2) Huntington, N. Y., and William S. Kline, 31, of (232 West 14th Street) Chicago Heights, Ill.

According to eye-witnesses' accounts, the plane broke up in the air. Kline's body was found 300 feet from the plane and Petermann was 600 feet from the wrecked fuselage.
Investigators found a log book near the plane, indicating, they said, that Kline was piloting the ship when the crash occurred. Peter's found in Petermann's clothing indicated, they said, that he was a former second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps.

Schatzel-Richards in Second Block

New York Star Leads by 168

Trailing by 168 pins, Rose Schatzel, Kingston's female bowling ace, faces the toughest assignment of her young career tonight, when she seeks to overcome that deficit in a 7-game block against Irene Richards of New York.

With $200 at stake, the petite Kingston dynamite will have to pick up pins at the rate of 24 per game against one of the top sharpshooters in the East. The match is scheduled for 8:30.

Mrs. Richards posted a 200.4 average in the opening block last Saturday at Hempstead and will come to Kingston accompanied by a flock of rooters who are willing to back her chances with all kinds of money.

The power-hitting Mrs. Richards holds a flock of individual and team titles and should impress local bowling observers as much, if not more, than Mickey Michaels or Ann Katter. Her most recent accomplishment was winning the 1947 Journal-American singles crown.

Although Mrs. Schatzel obviously is not in the razor sharp form that enabled her to route Jean Michaels, Michaels, her backer, are confident she can overcome Mrs. Richards' big lead. They feel that if Rose can throw a few big games on days 5 and 6 at the start of the block her chances of winning will be good.

The advance sale of tickets indicates that another capacity crowd will join the Central Free for the stellar duel. Mrs. Richards will be accompanied by a husband of rooters.

Another contest will feature Coker Norris of New York city and Bob Thurston of Long Island. "The looks like the real fight of the year," retorted Matchmaker Peter Montesano.

Elbert Carey of Stewart Field will face Jimmy Reeves of New York in another sensational contest.

Middletown's Clarence Brown has been matched with Newburgh's George Monk. Brown won his last two fights at the Avalon by kayos.

In The Pocket

CHARLIE TIANO

Kingston has organized ball for the first time since 1917 and the Class D North Atlantic League franchise sets the keynote for renewed interest in the national pastime. Due to conflicting circumstances that surrounded the invasion of Kingston by the Brooklyn Dodgers, it has been difficult to finger the pulse of public reaction. In the final analysis the showdown will come at the box office.

Given a good ball club, the Kingston fans will support the Class D venture in regal style. Good baseball is a tradition in the city. The Brooklyn Dodger organization has an enviable reputation for developing championship teams in every classification and there is every reason to believe that Branch Rickey will make it his business to give Kingston a winner.

We have felt all along that Kingston was entitled to a higher classification of organized ball, at least a B rating. Kingston is almost three times greater in population than any other city in the circuit. It appears, however, that Brooklyn had only one franchise available, the defunct Walden spot in the North Atlantic League.

There are other reasons that would lead one to anticipate more than just a routine buildup by the Dodgers. Branch Rickey, Jr., must have told his celebrated father about that now famous "public hearing" on the Class D franchise. That franchise was awarded the Dodgers in spite of the tremendous objections voiced at that historic confab. It is our opinion that Class D baseball would have come to Kingston no matter what happened that night, and they might just as well have shipped the whole thing. Many deep wounds that still linger among certain segments of the baseball population could have been avoided. They will be with us for a long time to come.

Our own observations lead us to believe that the Kingston Dodgers are a fast, hustling group of youngsters who have one and only one objective in life—to play before the bizarre crowds that infest God's Little Acre in Brooklyn. Manager George "Sugar" Scherger and Business Manager Paul Taylor are a couple of high class, serious minded young men. They will exert all their energies to make Class D baseball click in Kingston.

And where does that leave Kingston baseball? Semi-pro baseball is washed up. The City League is being revived with 10 teams at the Athletic Field. It should regain its former high standard if the league officials and players stay on the ball. It is the only outlet for local baseball talent and as such must be protected.

We feel that the Kingston Dodgers and the Kingston City League will prosper. Branch Rickey's organization is in Kingston to develop talent and make money. Mr. Rickey's affinity for the little green papers that make the world go around is well known. On the other hand, the City League has to click as the last stand for local baseball. We sincerely wish both organizations the greatest success possible. Baseball is our first love and always will be, and we'll do everything in our power to keep it the No. 1 sport in Kingston.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM
The cloak of invincibility was shorn from the Newburgh Free Academy baseball club by young Billy McCarthy, the brilliant Highland High School flinger. . . . McCarthy, no relation to Highland's McCarthy of radio fame, shackled the Goldbacks with two hits and struck out 11 men to score an easy 11-1 victory.

Ten Newburgh errors made it a cakewalk for the right hander who was the best pitcher on the field when the Kingston Athletic Association's Hudson Valley Juniors played the proklydians here last summer. . . . Andy Radke, Ellenville High School senior, fashioned a no-hit, no-run stint against Fallsburgh Central. . . . He fanned 11 batters and bagged Ellenville's first hit in the sixth inning to win 3-0. . . . Newton Culver, Union's crack middle distance runner, swept the mile and half mile, but couldn't save his team from defeat at the hands of Trinity. . . . Stu Parks, former K.I.S. athlete great, is coach of the Trinity track team. . . . Theron Culver, assistant principal at K.I.S., viewed his son's accomplishments with understandable pride. . . . The Pittsburgh Pirates have released left hander Lou Tost. . . . Remember Tost? He's the fellow who was a rookie sensation with the Boston Braves in 1942 and pitched five innings against the Kingston Recreationers at the stadium. . . . So long kesters, this is the end. . . . Next time out it will be "In the Rough."

If Feller Is "All Burned Out" What About Those A. L. Hitters

Bobby Feller again has established himself as the top pitcher in baseball with a solid chance of fitting the 30-game win mark. Although critics whispered that he would be "burned out" after his gruelling 1946 strikeout pace and long barnstorming tour, he has compiled a dazzling string of 29 shutout innings.

New York Central Withdraws From Loop

William "Pucker" Davis, manager of the New York Central nine of the City Baseball League, today announced withdrawal of his franchise, reducing the number of teams to 10.

Davis has declared all his players free agents and instructed them to make other connections. The N.Y.C. said a few of his players probably would be signed by the West Shore nine. Elimination of the N.Y.C. franchise enables the City League to map a more effective schedule and will permit each team to play at least once a week. The two circuit plans to operate five nights weekly at the Athletic Field, starting Monday, May 12.

Phalanx, Jet Pilot Top Favorites For 73rd Derby

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—A heavy track was in prospect today for this afternoon's running of the 73rd Kentucky Derby.

Although the latest official weather forecast did not indicate continuance of rain which has fallen here intermittently for three days, it was almost impossible for the racing strip at Churchill Downs to dry out completely by Derby post time at 4:45 p. m. (CST).

The Derby madness was somewhat more insane than ever today as some 125,000 race-mad people attempted to pick the winner among 14 three-year-old colts.

The main reason for the extraordinary confusion attending the 73rd and biggest of all Kentucky Derbies was the fact that there wasn't an outstanding favorite among the 14 horses that are due to parade to the post at 4:45 p. m. (CST) today for the 73rd edition of Col. Matt Winn's guessing game.

The weather continued as a prime factor for speculation although the forecast called for a warmer day after a half week of rain that turned the Churchill Downs racing strip into a soupy mess as it has so often in the past.

Then there were a couple of horses that probably wouldn't have been mentioned at all if it wasn't for the "off track" factor.

A series of preliminary races failed to produce anything but arguments as to which of a half dozen leading contenders might hit the jackpot. On top of that, you even had to consider the trainers and jockeys.

Record Crowd
The one certainty today was that the largest crowd in all Derby history would jam the rambling wooden stands at Churchill Downs to capacity and a little more.

As for the horses, a necessary but comparatively unimportant factor in the whole affair, it remained something of a question whether Phalanx, the Virginia-bred colt who looked so impressive in recent outings, or Jet Pilot, the mud-loving speedster, would attract more interest today. No one would concede that any of the 14 entries didn't have a chance, not even Baithem, the one-time selling plater whose name hadn't even been mentioned until his name was dropped into the entry box yesterday.

Phalanx Favored
Phalanx, jointly owned by C. V. Whitney and Virginia Abe Hewitt, continued to hold the favorite's role he assumed after the Wood Memorial. But almost as highly regarded were the Kentucky-bred Faultless from Warren Wright's Calumet farm, and the Blue Grass colt who sold for $1,000 at the Fasbinder sale.

Phalanx, who still has the experts talking about the race he won in the mud on Derby Day of 1946.

To match Phalanx's victory in the Wood, Faultless ran off with Baithem's Flamingo stakes, the Blue Grass colt who sold for $1,000 at the Fasbinder sale.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

O.K. to Bid Short Suit Sometimes

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for N.E.A. Service
Several years ago S. Garion Churchill of Great Neck, L. I., published a book entitled "Contract Bidding Tactics at March Point Play," one of the few books that bring out the difference between rubber and tournament bridge.

However, Churchill's kibitzers find that his bidding is not restricted by his book. They might find it difficult to account for some of his bids, but each is made with a definite purpose in mind. In today's hand Churchill (North) found himself in a peculiar situation when his partner opened the bidding with one club. He either had to bid two clubs, which might indicate a weak hand, or one no trump, which would sign the hand off. Instead, he elected to make a constructive bid of one heart. Then when his partner bid a spade, Churchill's one no trump bid did not necessarily show weakness. In other words, rather than make an overbid of two no trump on the first round, or sign the hand off with two clubs, Churchill preferred a constructive bid with a short suit. Churchill won the opening spade lead with the queen. He led a small club and went up with dummy's king. West playing the jack. Another club was led. West played the ten and Churchill took the queen, killing the ten and ace at the same time.

East returned a heart, which dummy's ace won. Now Churchill cashed the two good clubs and ran the three spades, leaving himself with the king of hearts and the king-ten-six of diamonds. East tried to save his queen of hearts so he blanked down to the ace-jack of diamonds and the queen and six of hearts. All Churchill had to do now was lead a small diamond and the only trick that East could take was his ace of diamonds. Had he blanked down to the queen of hearts and the ace-jack-eight of diamonds, East would have made two diamonds tricks. In tournament bridge it is these extra tricks that mean so much.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Well-Timed Sprinkling
Roswell, N. M., May 3 (AP)—S. G. Chamberlin was hungry, but it would be a few minutes until supper. So he sprinkled the lawn. Then something blew up and set the kitchen alight.

Hungrier than ever, Chamberlin rushed in with the garden hose and saved his supper—and his house—while Mrs. Chamberlin sought fire department help.

Bar to Justice
San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—Three-year-old Michael Carter brought Federal Court justice to an abrupt halt yesterday when he asked a question in a slot and clogged the keyhole of the U. S. Marshall's Jail.

Numerous trials in the federal courtrooms were delayed by absence of principals until Guard Charles Russell contrived a gadget out of wire and metal to dislodge the coin.

Michael got his quarter back.

Attention Hatters
San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—William Walker, Lighting Company executive, may need a new hat any day now.

He says he went to London 42 years ago and saw a hat he liked. For the equivalent of $6 U. S. currency he bought 25.

One by one he wore them until now he's down to the last of the 25 toppers.

Right Man to Tell
Emeryville, Calif., May 3 (AP)—A passerby called to Fireman William Webber, sunning himself in front of the station yesterday: "Hey, Bill, saw a car smoking out back, looked like it was on fire."

"Incidentally, I think it's your car."

It was. Webber saved it.

Meticulous Hobbyist
Chicago, May 3 (AP)—A hobby to 14-year-old Allan Fisher is serious business.

His exhibit at the Youth Hobby Fair is a miniature 1925 model town car, built, he said, from the original blue prints. It has 534 parts, windows that roll up and down, a steering wheel, and a motor.

Like the town car of his day, Allan's model would afford no protection from rain or cold for a chauffeur.

MODENA
Modena, April 30—The regular meeting of the Public Health Nursing Committee of the town of Plattekill, will be held at the home of Mrs. Lillian Courter Tuesday evening, May 6. At this time reports will be given of the receipts gained from the card and game party held recently in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall for the benefit of the dental clinic of the Walkill central school system. A report also was given for the dance held Thursday evening, April 24, in the hall for the benefit of the Cancer Control campaign fund. The dental trailer which was scheduled to arrive in this section Monday, April 21 was delayed at Kingston.

A stork shower was given Mrs. Harold Wager at the home of Mrs. Orville Coy Thursday evening. Mrs. Leonard Coy, Jr., was co-hostess. Others attending were Mrs. Joseph Petrucci, Mrs. John Bayless, Mrs. Frank Coy, Mrs. Richard Coy, Mrs. Harold West, Mrs. Leonard Coy, Sr., Mrs. Willard Doolittle, Mrs. Edward Doolittle, Mrs. Gail Grigg.

Judge Reserves Final Decision On Leo-Laraine

Los Angeles, May 3 (AP)—The Laraine Day-Leo Durocher marital mixup is in the hands of Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull, with a ruling promised next Friday on whether the actress' California divorce from J. Ray Hendricks is in effect.

Durocher, to hear the opposing attorneys tell it in their final arguments yesterday, is either a "fine upstanding gentleman" or a "roughneck from Brooklyn."

The court, however, will not rule on these conflicting views. Judge Bull is called upon merely to determine whether Miss Day's divorce from Hendricks, an airplane parts dealer, was obtained through fraud and collusion.

The legal cuckoo arose when Miss Day, after obtaining a decree here which would not have made her separation from Hendricks complete for 12 months, flew to Mexico, won a quick divorce, and the following day married Durocher, suspended Brooklyn baseball manager, in El Paso, Tex.

2 Army Fliers Killed
Homestead, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Two army personnel, killed when an A-26 light attack bomber crashed in a vacant lot here yesterday, were identified last night as Lt. Col. John J. Van Der Zee, Route 175, Eddington, Me., and M/Sgt. Wendell L. Russell of 205 Pine street, Bangor, Me. The plane hit in the lot on Perry street, a main thoroughfare, throwing the bodies across into a yard. Flying mud and broken parts broke windows in a house 100 feet away.

Italians Strike in Protest Over May Day Slayings

Rome, May 3 (AP)—Workers throughout Italy, except those in public services and utilities, left their benches and offices today in a general strike to protest the May Day ambush machine gunning of a workers' and peasants' parade in Sicily.

A resolution of the nationally powerful general labor confederation calling the strike did not say how long it should last, but the general understanding was that the strikers would stay out only a few hours. In Rome the chamber of labor summoned them to a mass meeting at the Basilica Di Massimo, near the ancient Roman forum.

Eight persons were killed and 33 wounded among 400 in the May Day parade machine gunned at Umana, Delta Giocstra near Palermo Thursday morning by mounted gunmen on a hill 300 yards away. Two of the dead were women. The Socialist newspaper Avanti said another was a 10-year-old boy.

Bluestone Goes for Dutchess Bridges

First loads of stone cut in a quarry at High Woods were hauled from there this week to four bridge projects east of Poughkeepsie. The blocks, cut to order of contractors and under specifications of the state highway department, were shaped from bluestone from the local quarry and from graystone hauled from the valley of the East

Branch of the Delaware near Downsville, Delaware county. Standing near some of the finished stone is George Whitaker who is operating the project with Joseph Hallion. Five other men are employed on the job which has been under way for 11 months. The stone is numbered before it leaves the quarry to prevent delay in construction on the bridge projects. Two Fliers Are Killed In Utica Plane Crash

Utica, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—Two men were killed last night when their light, private passenger plane crashed about two miles north of the Utica municipal airport.

The dead were identified as Henry C. Poterbaum, 22, of R.F.D. 21 Huntington, N. Y., and William S. Kline, 31, of 1232 West 14th street, Chicago Heights, Ill.

According to eye-witnesses' accounts, the plane broke up in the air. Kline's body was found 300 feet from the plane and Poterbaum was 600 feet from the wrecked fuselage.

Investigators found a log book near the plane, indicating they said that Kline was piloting the ship when the crash occurred. Poterbaum's clothing indicated they said that he was a former second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps.
